Announcements:

22nd-First Day of School!

Religion

We have a new religion curriculum this year so we will spend this week going over the introductory chapter on how the textbook works and what we will learn all year.

Social Studies

We are also starting social studies right of the bat and talking about education. This week's reader will talk about people in history that have helped our education system become what it is today..

Reading/Writing

We will just read a few books aloud as a class this week and not get into our textbooks since we have some testing to complete. The books this week will be on the rainforest since the theme of our classroom is the rainforest. Then we will break into groups and makes murals of the assigned ecosystems(saltwater, grasslands, arctic etc.) and present them at the end of the week.

Writing this week will involve daily journal entries. We will not correct these and will just write and present them that day.

Math

We have a lot of math testing this week to see where everyone is at, but on the couple days when we are not testing, we will be playing Subtraction Bingo and a game about telling time.

Happy Birthday Thursday to Samanda and Autumn!

Science

We are jumping right into our science books this week and will be talking about the needs of plants and the different types of plants in the world.
